Dear Dean,

I so much appreciate your being willing to participate in my study, and putting in the time and effort as you did. I also enjoyed simply meeting you and your wife, and I do hope we get a chance to meet again. Also, I appreciated the "healing." When I spoke to someone on the phone a few hours later she remarked spontaneously on how much lighter and lively my voice was, whether this was due to the healing, meeting you, or whatever.

Shortly after we met, my editor at Doubleday put me back to work on my book, with a vengeance, and in order to meet her deadline I have not been able to go over the tests in detail, even the reading material which you gave me. However, just informally, some commonalities seem to be appearing in the half dozen or so tests, and I am encouraged.

Cordially yours,

Stephen A. Appelbaum, Ph.D.
